Rav Sidhu Wins by KO in Thailand

Written by IK on June 20th 2013

Rav Sidhu defeats tough Thai fighter Sorachart at Lumpini stadium with a KO in the fourth round.

It was the biggest fight of the Adelaide fighter's career as he took on a seasoned and dangerous 120-fight veteran. The duo didn't disappoint either as they brought the crowd to their feet with a great fight.

The first two rounds were very even with both fighters testing each other's range. Sorachart used well timed knees being the taller fighter, while Sidhu ultilised lightning fast head kicks, which excited the crowd.

Both men exchanged solid body kicks and knees in the third and fourth rounds. Sidhu put the pressure on, unleashing some sharp elbows in the fourth round, which cut Sorachart.

Sorachart felt the need to push the fight after being cut, but was caught with another well timed elbow that sent him falling to the canvas